Apple is trying to show some shiny hardware to help take your mind off the device crippling they do if you have an older model. The hardware they are showing off is a new iMac Pro. Think of this as an upgrade to your iMac, but nothing so sweet and wonderful as a new Mac Pro. That being said, it's pretty impressive that they are bringing up to 18-core processors to the iMac - but not until later in 2018. Earlier than that, you'll be able to get a sweet 8-core or 10-core unit however. Prices START at $4999 for the 8-core version.

Of course, we will have much more about the iMac Pro in the coming days and weeks, including price details, which have still yet to be revealed outside of the $4999 baseline 8-core version. After seeing it on video, have your plans changed with regard to purchasing one?
