

Galaxy Note 8 Renders

Written by Benjamin "Zeus" Heide

Tuesday, 27 June 2017 17:16 - Last Updated Tuesday, 27 June 2017 17:20

---

The Galaxy Note 7 fiasco is still fading from memory - thanks in large part to the success of the Galaxy S8 and S8+. Still, the Galaxy Note 8 has a lot to live up to and overcome. According to the latest renders and 360 video, it has some pretty solid looks and goes with the "Infinity Display" that we find and love on the S8. The S8 is a pretty fragile device though, and there are a few design issues that I have with the Note 8. Still, it's a ultra-premium device with a matching price that should be available later this year.

While Samsung is expected to board the dual-camera bandwagon with the upcoming Galaxy C10, the Note8 is also expected to sport this feature. As indicated by the renders, the Note8's dual cameras will be configured horizontally, and in fact, come placed on a reasonably large camera bump. The tipped dimensions say the phablet will measure 162.4 x 74.5 x 8.4mm, and that thickness will go up to 9.5mm when the camera bump is included.

Source: 91Mobiles