With the iPhone 8 announcement right around the corner the "hopefully it has this feature" articles are now coming fast and furious. While Apple would never admit they need to catchup to Android on anything, Time has come up with a list of 5 features that the iPhone is lacking in comparison to Android.

Apple's keynotes, typically loaded with new iPhone and iPad surprises, are some of the most closely watched product launches of the year. But in view of the features packed into recent Android rivals like the Galaxy Note and Essential Phone, the anticipation around Apple's imminent late summer event is unusually high. The Cupertino, California-based tech giant is expected to debut three new smartphones on September 12, including a 10th anniversary edition iPhone that could bring the biggest changes Apple's iconic mobile devices have seen in years.
