November is here and if you've been binge-watching on your favorite streaming media outlet and are bemoaning "nothing to watch", there is more stuff coming this November. There is some great content coming to Amazon Prime, Netflix and HBO Now. Take a look and start planning for those cold days and wet, windy and snowy weekends.

Amazon Prime Video will add critical favorite The Big Sick to its lineup on November 24th. But the service will continue to improve its legacy movie library selection as well. Nearly all the (pre-Daniel Craig) James Bond franchise is coming to the service, and if you're interested in holding onto that gothy, Halloween spirit just a little longer, the service will also have Bram Stoker's Dracula available starting November 1st.
