Some new rumors surrounding the Samsung Galaxy S3 smartphone, this time they've maybe even got some pictures of it in the wild. Most of the specs appear to be what has been rumored so it might actually be legit (who knows). Gizmodo has the full story.

According to the leak, the phone—going by model number GT-I9300—packs: a 720 x 1184 4.6-inch display (that's 320 DPI), a quad-core 1.4 GHz processor, 1GB of RAM, a 2,050mAh battery, an 8-megapixel camera and 16GB of storage.

There also appears to be some kind of plastic rim around this leaked device, making it look slightly larger than it actually is and disguising the edge of the handset.
