

Microsoft Tablet Surfaces

Written by Benjamin "Zeus" Heide
Tuesday, 19 June 2012 16:18 -

---

Microsoft had a big announcement yesterday where they showed off a completely new and innovative product - a tablet. Now this isn't just any old tablet - it's a Microsoft branded piece of hardware and it's named after their "Surface" platform. It will launch running Windows 8 RT on an ARM chip, but eventually move into something more powerful. GeekSugar has a look at some stand-out features that make it different than the plethora of competition.

Surface is an eye-catching new option in the competitive tablet market. The 10.6 -inch tablet hosts some striking features that have us wanting Microsoft to announce the price and availability soon so we can claim our place in line.

---