Microsoft's Surface event is just around the corner and there are a few things that could be coming down the pipe - and are in fact quite expected. One of the more interesting things is the Surface All-In-One PC. It looks like a pretty fancy iMac. Also expected are some new VR tech, an Amazon Echo competitor and more. Overall, it may prove to be a pretty good fall for Microsoft.

Microsoft is returning to New York City this week to host a special press event on October 26th. While Microsoft held a similar event last year in October, this year's show is expected to include less hardware, with more of a theme around 3D and creativity. That theme will extend directly to an expected Surface all-in-one device, and details on Microsoft's upcoming Windows 10 software updates.
