The Ryzen CPU has been getting most of the attention over at the AMD camp, however, on their Radeon graphics side we are getting close to finding out more about their Radeon Vega GPU which they've been teasing people about. It looks like we are finally going to get more information on February 28th about the Vega which is being rumored to be released in the first half of 2017. We'll keep you updated when we know more. PCWorld has more on the story in the meantime.

Radeon Vega doesn't have a firm release date, but AMD says the card will launch in the first half of 2017. Want to know more? AMD's holding a "Capsaicin" livestream on February 28, where more Radeon Vega details will no doubt be teased
