

Don't Buy A Macbook Pro Just Yet

Written by Benjamin "Zeus" Heide
Wednesday, 31 May 2017 03:44 -

In this day and age, it's pretty hard to launch a product without a leak or three prior to launch. Back in the day, Apple was the king of tight lips but lately with online retail, things slip much easier it seems. The latest leak comes from a retailer showing when the unreleased Macbook will be shipped and delivered. The thing is, Apple hasn't announced anything yet. I guess they plan on it very soon.

Nevertheless, Apple has staggered the release of the MacBook Pro in the past. In 2015, for example, it released a 13-inch model in March, and a 15-inch model in May. In 2012, Apple unveiled the 15-inch MacBook Pro with Retina display at WWDC in June, while a 13-inch model didn't launch until October.

Source: MacRumors