It's pretty interesting (and good for Samsung) that the Galaxy S7 Edge won "best of show" at Mobile World Congress. What I find super interesting is that the phone is almost a full year old as it was released last March. Of course there are many organizations that give awards, so this isn't probably the absolute best Smartphone on the planet, but according to GSMA - the trade body that represents mobile operators around the world - it's the best.

We are honored to be recognized for our craftsmanship in design and innovation with the Galaxy S7 edge. This award is a testament to our constant pursuit of excellence as we continue to exceed consumers' expectations through revolutionary mobile technology." ~ Junho Park, VP of Global Product Strategy.
