Microsoft has just rolled out their Anniversary Update for Windows 10, and now you can get all of the last years worth of updates in one nifty little (not so little actually) package. They have just put the latest ISO into the wild, so if you're installing a new system for a client - or yourself - you won't have to reboot 30 times after the install to do updates. More details about the latest build and links for the downloads below.

With the long-awaited public release of the Anniversary Update - also known by its development codename, Redstone 1 - Microsoft has now made ISOs available to download from its Windows Insider site. Five editions are available:

- Windows 10 Insider Preview - Build 14393
- Windows 10 Insider Preview Enterprise - Build 14393
- Windows 10 Insider Preview Education - Build 14393
- Windows 10 Insider Preview Home Single Language - Build 14393
- Windows 10 Insider Preview Home China - Build 14393
