

Microsoft Wants to Pay You to Switch to OneDrive

Written by Benjamin "Zeus" Heide
Wednesday, 07 February 2018 06:23 -

If you've got Office 365 and are paying for cloud storage from Dropbox or Google Drive can switch to OneDrive for Business and Microsoft will foot the bill until your current subscription on the competitive service runs out. Microsoft even gives you tools to quickly and easily migrate your data to their cloud. If you use Office for your business this is a great offer to help see how convenient it is if everything works together easily.

We are making it easier for new customers to make the switch by offering free OneDrive for Business for the remaining term of their existing contract with Box, Dropbox, or Google. This offer is valid starting February 6, 2018 through June 30, 2018 for organizations that are not currently OneDrive for Business or Office 365 customers and who make a minimum 500 user commitment.

Source: Office Blog